

BRIDGING THE PAST AND THE FUTURE OF URBAN LANDSCAPE IN ASIA PACIFIC

call for papers, posters, conference, paper presentation, expo, and scientific publication

The world has changing rapidly including Asia Pacific (AP) that is now the leading region of economic growth in the world and is enduring 5G & IoT digital revolution across the region according to the Market watch report in 2019. The terminology Asia Pacific has lead the main theme in the CITIES 2020 caused by its strategically location, culture connections and also economic cooperation among them. ESCAP and UN Habitat have been highlighting the shifting in the AP cities in the future that caused by the demographic pattern changing, the induction of technology in the daily life as well as in the ecological contexts. ESCAP and UN Habitat have also highlighting that the AP countries has advantaged in the diverse value and social economic changes that embodied on their inherited cities that been spreading in the big cities across AP region. In order to sustaining the cities, the AP region need to accelerate their economic and infrastructure growth in the way that will not hurting their legacy and societies. So the theme "Bridging the Past and The Future of Urban Landscape (Cities) in Asia Pacific" in this conference is trying to gather new insight, best practices, policy as well as lesson learnt towards sustainable future AP and also the preservation of what they value in the past. The preservation of cultural heritage assets is aimed at protecting the built expressions of culture, of military, of economic, and religious forces to benefit the present and future of cities. For over 50 years, the integral and holistic approach to heritage and urban development has been highlighted in every heritage-related cultural policy document, stressing the need to balance the benefits of socio- economic and urban development with the preservation of cultural heritage.
